THE UNIQUE "GREEN" ALTERNATIVE FOR THOSE WHO ARE CONSCIOUS OF OUR ENVIRONMENT

BIFD Member Jeremy Clutterbuck had been searching for a truly environmentally-friendly coffin that he could recommend to his clients. His position is that he wishes to balance the green environmental credentials of a coffin with something that offers a dimension of everyday use in practicality.

Jeremy was aware of a local company that produced board made entirely from recycled newspaper, so having found his material, he scoped the idea of using it as a material to manufacture a coffin with.

The resultant product is the work of a two-year collaboration between a specialist manufacturer and a funeral director with exacting requirements named the Sunset Coffin range. It is a beautiful to look at, sturdy, conventionally-shaped coffin made using traditional techniques but with no plastics or metals, which means it is totally biodegradable and suitable for either burial or cremation.

The board has a very tactile finish and is available in eight different shades.

Jeremy is delighted with the resultant product and commented, "It is truly unique and needs to be seen and touched to be fully appreciated".

Simon Lewis, BIFD National President is seen here with a model of the product, which was featured at the 2009 BIFD Conference in Cardiff.
